

Half & Reflect

- When creating something complex with the pen tool always draw half, reflect it and join the two halves together this will have your finished product be more professional

Creating the same complex curves of this goblet a second time would waste time and cause unneeded frustration.

While working on the cannon take the time to see were half and reflect can be used. This is not only important for economics but in the polish of the finished piece. What we want is publishing quality!

